Survey on the South Side Excites The Interest of Property Holders.

The appearance of a corps of surveyors on the South Side yesterday afternoon resulted in considerable conjecture on the part of residents of that section. It was first surmised that the West Penn was running lines for a new route to South Connellsville out Arch street. This was denied by Chief Engineer J. L. Fritsch this morning.

"We have never contemplated such a line," Mr. Fritsch stated. "If the West Penn ever changes the South Connellsville line it will be to Pittsburgh street and no more side thoroughfares."

The surveyors also took the names of the property holders on Cedar and Arch streets to South Connellsville. The men might have either been a portion of Borough Engineer J. B. Hogg's force or the Western Maryland men.

For some days past men from the office of Superintendent of Transportation J. S. Jenks of the West Penn have been getting the names of property owners for use on a new map, but they were not surveying any territory. South Siders are curious to know who and why is in the surveying game.

BOWMAN ASSAULT CASES SETTLED BEFORE BOTH JUDGES TODAY.

Petition Signed by Many Connellsville Citizens Asked That Sentence Be Suspend and It Was.

PROMISSORY NOTE CAUSES SUIT

In Which the First National Bank of Maestown Is Plaintiff and S. N. Galle, the Maker of the Note, the Defendant—Amount $2,000.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Oct. 18.—At a short session of court this morning, with both Judges J. Q. Van Swearingen and R. L. Umbel on the bench, the two assault and battery cases of William Bowman, the former Connellsville policeman, were settled for the time being.

The defendant, who has appeared once before for sentence, was represented by Attorney Ross S. Matthews. Two petitions were presented, one signed by George W. Roche, of Indiana, Pa., one of the prosecutors, the other bearing the signatures of 15 citizens of Connellsville.

The petition signed by the latter states that they believe the assault committed by Bowman was not wholly without fault and it is believed the payment of costs in the case would be sufficient punishment. Among the signers are: Burgess J. L. Evans, George B. Brown, James B. Millard, Wm. McConeale, J. E. Sims, Bert J. Thomas, James G. Gorman and Grant Dull.

Attorney Matthews said it was expected to have a petition signed by the second prosecutor, R. D. Galtrecht, but though he had no objection to the disposition made of the case, he would not sign.

Judge R. L. Umbel stated that he would suspend sentence on payment of the costs. The records are left open, and should Bowman get into further trouble he will be recalled and sentenced on the former case. Costs amounting to about $150 are to be paid by the defendant. Judge Umbel said this was the most aggravated case ever allowed to be adjudged in Fayette county courts.

Bowman, in a fight at the plant of the National Fire Brick Company in Daubert township, last June, came out the winner over Ronch and Galbreath. After the two brought charges against him, Bowman made information against them. The Grand Jury ignored the bill and placed the case on the prosecutor, which is included in the $150.

A promissory note for $2,000, due for months after date is the cause of the suit entered today by the First National Bank of Maestown against S. N. Galle, the maker.

On November 1st, 1909, the defendant executed and delivered the note to James B. Sterling, J. J. Ross and Jesse A. Sterling, the latter endorsing and turning it over to the bank, before maturing.

William M. Sterling, executor of the will of James B. Sterling, deceased, J. J. Ross and Jesse A. Sterling, ex-clerks, were also made defendants in another suit over the same note. Attorney Robinson, Meffern and Martin filed the plaintiff's statement in both cases.

A like suit was started by the Citizens Title & Trust Company against J. Bruce Smith for the recovery of $250 on a 90 day promissory note for $250, delivered to the Peoples' Tribune Company, and dated June 15, 1910.

Upon the rendition of M. B. Price, F. D. Munson was appointed minority inspector in the Third Ward Connellsville.

The report of the inspectors recommending the purchase of White's bridge, over Indian creek, in Springfield township, was approved. Two of the inspectors, Herbert Fritsch and F. D. Munson, signed the report.

An information was returned to the court by which George Weaver, aged 12, is held by Squire Joseph Bryce of Clippan for an alleged assault upon the eight year old son of Sule Walker.

Halts Thief at Point of Gun Sunday

John T. Laughrey of No. 109 West Norton avenue caught a thief in the act of breaking into the vacant store room adjoining his home early Sunday morning. Laughrey secured his gun and held the man up, ordering him to drop the money he had gathered up. Laughrey then shot in the air to scare the man. This brought a neighbor.

As the man was about to be marched to the police station he was discovered he was a neighbor living in that vicinity. He was allowed to go.

Grim Is Willing To Withdraw if Committee Says

Special to The Courier.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 18.—Members of the Democratic State Executive Committee met here last evening, but no formal presentation of the rumored move toward Senator Grim's withdrawal as candidate for Governor was made at the meeting, nor was any conclusion reached as to whether this proposition will be brought before the committee. Members of the committee are awaiting developments here, and will stay over for a day or two, but it cannot be learned whether they have communicated with Mr. Grim.

To all appearances, the committee is leaving the matter to Mr. Grim, as when it was brought up a few weeks ago, and the candidate, in a statement telephoned to a Philadelphia newspaper late last night, makes it plain that his position is unaltered—that he will withdraw if the State Committee asks him to, but that he believes he can be elected, and if he does withdraw it must be at the behest of the committee.

Dr. Crippen is on Trial Before London Court

United Press Telegram.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen today pleaded not guilty to murder and the trial immediately opened. Crippen is charged with killing Belle Lamoore, his actress wife. The jury was quickly completed.

R. D. Mann King's counsel opened the case for the crown. It is expected a verdict will be returned within a week.

The court will be in session daily from 10 to 11 until 5.

Attorney Mull, in opening the case, declared the prosecution would show that Crippen and Ethel Elvire Lamoore had been intriguing for the past three years to be rid of Mrs. Crippen and had done all possible to cause an estrangement and divorce so Miss Lamoore could marry the doctor. The money being absorbed, the prosecutor declared, in supporting a woman he did not love could better support the Lamoore woman if Mrs. Crippen were gone.

Among the list of witnesses announced is Mrs. Thelma John of Brooklyn, N. Y., a step-sister of Mrs. Crippen, who will testify for the crown. After Solicitor Mull's opening, Frederick Townsend, Crippen's landlord, testified that nobody occupied the house except the Crippens about the time of the alleged murder. Dr. Burroughs testified similar to his statements at the inquest relative to the condition of the remains.

Shall We Rejoice

Gladdens comes with a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed and assisted by the pleasant laxative remedy Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

Its beneficial effects are due to the fact that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

TUESDAY EVENING, OCT 18, 1910.

THE PLEA OF THE RAILROADS.

It must be admitted that the railroads have made out a pretty strong case in support of their plea for an advancement of rates. While the public pays the freight, the people as a rule are not unwilling to have justice done between them and the transportation interests. It may be no doubt the Interstate Commerce Commission will be fair and impartial.

But railway tariffs need revision in the interest of justice far more than did the schedules of federal import duties. To meet increased costs of operation, including increased wages and higher cost of materials, the railroads no doubt need increased revenue, but railroad rates should be revised as well as advanced. That is to say that while there should be perhaps a general advance there should be special adjustments and equitable equalizations.

There are, for example, some palpable and glaring discriminations in the rates on coal and coke, and the Conneltsville region has just cause of complaint on this score. These complaints, however, should be presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission if they are not promptly and fully met by the railway managers. Conneltsville operators should not sit down and wait for leaden-headed justice to come their way; they should get on their legs and chase her.

COLONEL CRAGO ON THE TARIFF.

Colonel Thomas S. Crago, Republican candidate for Congress in this district, has a just idea of the tariff question. He has lived long enough to judge it by its results. In his Uniontown address, he said:

No science of government has ever yet been found capable of curing at once all existing evils, and the party has ever been formed capable of giving a people a government free from fraud, and free at the same time from all the evils which they know.

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY.
AT GETTYSBURG AGAIN.

The Blue and the Gray will meet on the battlefield of Gettysburg, but this time in brotherhood and not in blood. Plans are afoot for a reunion on the 50th anniversary of the battle, of all surviving Union and Confederate veterans who fought there. The reunion promises to be entirely successful, and the fact shows that the Civil War is at last over. Passion has cooled and prejudice has been trampled under foot by the march of progress. There remains nothing but the thrilling memories of gallant deeds and the mutual respect which brave men have for each other.

The war veterans are getting old. Time has whitened their heads and bowed their frames. But it has also cleansed their hearts of bitterness, tempered their judgments with charity and revived the fraternal feeling which is natural between citizens and soldiers.

CONNELLSVILLE'S
HALLOWEEN PLANS.

Connellsville's plans for a safe and sane and popular Halloween celebration have assumed practical shape, and everything points to their entire success.

The Courier began the agitation for a more sensible and enjoyable celebration several years ago. Like all innovations it grew slowly, but it developed surely and satisfactorily. Its wise folly appealed to the common sense of the people and the idea took firm root and developed sturdy growth under the careful nurturing of public-spirited citizens whose hearts are still young.

The community owes these promoters of the public welfare a debt of gratitude. They have planned wisely and built permanently. Once the summer's festival is firmly established, it will be impossible to change it for the old and undesirable conditions.

NO BUSINESS IN THIS CANAL.

The President has decided to go to Panama to investigate, thoroughly, the charges of graft that have been made.—News Item.

W. Russell Carr, the youthful Democratic County Chairman of Fayette, has issued a manifesto to the young Democrats. It is a coruscating condemnation of the glittering game of transatlantic thought. Colonel Bryan could not have headed it out better. Chairman Carr is a veritable verbal punch. In the game of politics, however, deeds not words are demanded; proven politics, not fanciful theories. Impress the citizens, not just voices in press, make majorities.

Springfield township is springing some foreboding and venomous panther and snake stories upon our esteemed contemporary, The News. There is a suspicion that they are tinged with Mountain Dew.

Brownsville, too, is annoyed by false alarms, and is getting rather hot about it.

The commercial agencies report trade conditions more cheerful. It is cheering to know that they are cheerful, and it will be better to know that they are better.

The Government is about to dig into the old cavalry veterans next week, but there will be no charge.

Connellsville will entertain some of the old cavalry veterans next week, but there will be no charge.

The Pennsylvania railroad announces that after thirty years it has adopted a humane stock car. Better late than never.

Colonel Roosevelt wants more "glories" in the New York campaign. The Colonel is the boy to furnish it. Ginger in his specialty.

Connellsville's new residences are becoming more and more modern. We may be a City Beautiful yet.

Rockwood is doing a "stiff" business.

On "Holler Eve," everybody will be allowed to "holler," but vandalism and destruction will run the gauntlet of the Mailed Fist.

Beware of the campaign cigar. It usually has a Woolworth wrapper and a Hoboken filch.

Win and the world smiles with you; Lose, and you weep alone. For greedy man counts all he can, And fits when fame has flown.

The Suffrage Convention is New York. It is presided over by Mr. Cull and yet it has been said that there is nothing in a name!

Connellsville claims the proud distinction of having the only surviving Mexican war veteran in the State of Pennsylvania, and Pennsylvania want a full quota of brave men to that war.

Walter Wellman is in the waste of wireless air. If he makes a bon voyage to Europe his next trip will probably be to the North Pole, to which event he may be able to dispose of the rival claims of Perry and Cook.

Fayette county women are not all farmers, but they have a large share in farm work, and they are intelligent enough to talk understandingly about it.

Portugal has divorced Church and State and has thereby taken another important step to the establishment of republican government.

A Republic is no place for race riots and bloodshed, but the Republic of the Klondike sometimes gets away from the law on Pay Day.

Fall continues to be a fine proposition. It is to be hoped that it does not fall down too hard upon us when Snow Winter sets in.

It's back to the mills for Hoffstad, and the mills of justice do not always do course work.

Connellsville is going in bravely for a football record.

The West Side evinces a disposition to smoke up.

Senator Dolliver of Iowa, whose death has been announced in our news columns, was a native of West Virginia, and Senator Cummins is a native of Greene county. The Pennsylvania neighborhood grows many politicians and some statesmen.

"It's better to have lived and run than never to have been chased at all. Even the leaves refuse to turn this fall. It is an encouraging sign for Standpatters."

It has been discovered that some of the untidy enterprising western towns found means to persuade their census-takers to pad their population. No such charge will be made against the Conneltsville census-takers.

"Make the community of Pittsburgh the city of Pittsburgh." Is the slogan of Pittsburgh since the census returns. It's a good slogan for Conneltsville.

Battery of Millionaires to Appear Before Federal Grand Jury.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Some two-score millionaires are going to be called before the federal grand jury within the next ten days by United States District Attorney Wise to tell what they know about Duveen Bros., bringing out treasures into this country undervalued. Collector Loeb declares the firm of Duveen Bros., which is the largest and best known art dealers in the country, have smuggled millions of dollars' worth of paintings into the United States. The fact that Duveen Bros. are British subjects and members of the royalty has added an international aspect to the arrest of two members of the firm, John D. Rockefeller, J. P. Morgan, C. P. Taft, the President's brother; Mrs. C. P. Huntington and Henry C. Frick are among the wealthy art buyers who have been served with subpoenas to appear before the grand jury.

NEWS OF A DAY IN SCOTSDALE.

Davis and Mills Expect Big Tabernacle in a Day or So.

IS NEEDED FOR THE CROWDS

Monday Night's Meeting One of the Best—Great Enthusiasm For Halloween and Meeting Tonight. Nimrod's Go After Big Game.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Oct. 18.—The big steel tabernacle that the Davis and Mills evangelistic forces will hold their meetings in the future is expected early this week. The last word from the shippers was that it was held up in the freight yards at Elmira, N. Y., but had been sent out of there again. Agent C. M. McCracken of the Pennsylvania railroad is keeping in close touch with Altoona so when the car arrives there it will be but a short time until it reaches Youngwood and Scottdale. Thus when it gets into Scottdale the town will be ready to haul it up to the three lots the building will cover on Spring street and men will be ready to put it up. The ground has been graded level for the structure and everything will be ready to put the building up in a short time.

There was another large meeting last night, and many say for a Monday night's meeting it was the best of the season. An innovation was the having of the after meeting first last night. That was so that some who could not stay on other nights could stay last night. Mr. Davis said he would give the audience a chance to do the preaching and following this there were a large number of testimonials given. Mr. Davis interspersed the testimonials with helpful remarks. In speaking of salvation he said that some claim that it is presumption to say that you know you are saved, but according to the Bible if you accept Christ as your savior and you do not believe you are saved you have made God a liar. He took the fifth chapter of John as a basis for this.

For the Big Night.

Intense interest is being manifested in the approaching celebration of Halloween and there promises to be a good sized attendance of enthusiastic supporters of the semi-annual working of the autumn holiday evening. There will be a meeting tonight at the borough building at 8 o'clock, when Burgess H. P. Mills will name members of the committees upon whom the success of the celebration will depend. It will be a time, too, when it is desired that suggestions be made and volunteers will come forward to aid in making the evening a great success for the town. The idea has been so well carried out in previous Halloween's that they have assumed a historical appearance in comparison with other celebrations that mark time with a great deal of lustre. There is such a widespread and almost universal enthusiasm manifested that this year will eclipse all former ones.

The Board of Education has had a number of men and teams busy for some time grading the grounds surrounding the new high school building on Chestnut street. # Making Friends By Making Mistakes!

That's an odd headline, but it is quite true. We make mistakes, not very frequently but still we do make mistakes. We are only human.

Some times we do not hear of these mistakes, because the customer neglects to tell us. That is an injustice to us.

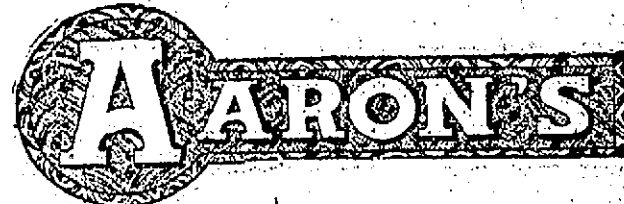

When we do hear of some mistake we've made, we proceed to "make good" in such a manner that the customer is impressed for all time with our desire to give the utmost satisfaction.

Now then if we (who are experts) make mistakes, how much more liable are you to make them in buying furniture? Think that over a bit and you will realize the extreme advisability of exercising care and caution in the selection of everything needed for your home.

Consult with us. Let us make suggestions. If you like what we suggest, well and good. If you don't, then try something else. Always remember the one Big Fact that we carry the highest class goods in the world but that our prices are no higher than you must pay elsewhere for vastly inferior qualities.

We minimize the chance of making mistakes. And if once out of a thousand times we do go wrong, we then practise "the gentle art of making good" and cement your friendship by doing so.

WHERE IS THE BIG DIRIGIBLE?

No Word Received From Walter Wellman and

LINERS FAIL TO REPORT THEM

Voyagers in Airship America Still Have Been Off Sable Island, N. S.,
Last Night, But Wireless Flashers
Failed to Locate the Big Gas Bag.

New York, Oct. 18.—The wireless people fished the air all night for Walter Wellman and the dirigible America, but there was no answer to the incessant call "W" stridently from steamships in the North Atlantic lanes and from the many public and private stations along the coast.

At the rate Wellman and his crew were sending along the America, the airship, if still aloft, should have been off Sable Island, N. S., at 8 o'clock last night, but the Marconi station at Campden, N. S., couldn't connect up with Jack Irwin, the wireless operator of the America.

Liners Couldn't Connect.
Up to midnight wireless reports from twenty-five Atlantic liners had been received, none of which mentioned the America, although all of them presumably had been calling to Irwin for a tip as to his whereabouts.

The westbound Italian, San' Guglielmo, reported herself 200 miles east of Sable Island and she had no news of the America. The Columbia cracked her own location to the Marconi station at Cape Race, but gave no report of the balloon.

Many other liners were in positions where they might have been expected to hook up aerials with the America, but they showed up with only formal reports for the station log books.

Friends Anxious.
With no word from Wellman in more than forty hours—since Jack Irwin last flashed that all was well—the friends of the America's crew are getting anxious.

There is absolutely no indication as to where the dirigible has veered; whether she is still peering away toward Ireland, or whether she has dropped somewhere on top of the United States or in Canada's basement.

If the America is still sailing she has beaten all records for continuous flight of dirigibles, possibly all records for endurance by man bags.

Count Zeppelin on May 31, 1900, sailed his dirigible thirty-seven hours, traveling more than 850 miles. If the America is still going, her captain, Melvil Vaniman, has sailed her longer than that. At Atlantic City Wellman's harpers were figuring that he has traveled at least 1,000 miles.

Time For Decision.
They knew that Wellman would decide last night whether to head across toward Europe or turn around and scout for the hangar that is kept warm for him at Atlantic City. Wellman told them before he was pushed off on Sunday morning that he would start back for Atlantic City the moment he and his men decided the voyage to Europe is impracticable.

Leroy Chamberlain, Walter Wellman's son-in-law, said:
"So far as we can make out by study of the maps and charts which we have, the America has reached a point where it can be decided whether there is a chance to reach Europe."

Chamberlain's Calculations.
"It is almost safe to say that this decision is being reached now, or will be reached within the next few hours by the men aboard the American. I believe that the America, at nightfall, was off St. Pierre, N. F., and had turned east, almost exactly in the trans-Atlantic steamship lane. We are confident that some message showing our calculations to be correct will soon reach one of the wireless stations."

Mrs. Wellman, her daughter, Mrs. Caniman, and others interested in Mr. Wellman's venture were at the Chalfonte at Atlantic City anxiously awaiting some news of the America's whereabouts.

Naturally Mrs. Wellman was worried, but she kept optimistic and even discussed whether it wouldn't be a good thing to start for Ireland or England, so as to be on hand if the America succeeded in crossing.

Forecasters said that the wind had been blowing just right for Wellman. At Halifax there was a twenty-mile wind from the northwest. Eastport reported clear weather and a twelve mile breeze from the west.

The weather bureau sent out storm warnings from Washington—hurricane shooting up along the coast—but the bureau figured that the America would escape the severity of the storm.

OUT OF TRACK

Of Liners May Explain Lack of News From Wellman.

Washington, Oct. 18.—Chief Willis L. Moore of the weather bureau and his people have been figuring why it is that no reports have come from Balloonist Wellman for many hours. They think he has drifted out of his course and that his weak wireless hasn't been able to connect up with other aerials.

The America, they think, has been blown out of the North Atlantic steamship lane, which Wellman intended to parallel.

When the America passed Nantucket Island its course lay to the northeast, parallel to the New England coast and Nova Scotia, to the banks of Newfoundland. The weather officials regard it as probable that Wellman found the westerly winds favorable and decided to drift with them. The winds were just a little north of west, although Wellman would have preferred a southwesterly blow.

If it is true that the America has been going with the westerly winds, instead of slightly crossing them, as would have been necessary to hold to the course that was laid out, she has been sailing at an acute angle away from the course of the steamers taking the northern route, and constantly increasing her distance from the steamer lane.

That would explain the inability of the ships to get their wireless in touch with the America's apparatus.

The balloon is fitted with enough gasoline and food to last fifty days. Wellman expects to complete the journey in ten days. Sable Island, where the America should have been some time last night, is about 750 miles from Atlantic City.

HIT BY HURRICANE.

The Coast of Florida Suffers From Big Storm.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 18.—Advices received here indicate that the east and west coasts of Florida are being harried by one of the worst hurricanes in history.

After having apparently passed to northward the hurricane recurved and struck Key West furiously. Key West reported wind blowing eighty miles an hour and much damage being done.

By nightfall all communication with Key West was lost and the damage done the island city is only problematical.

Tampa reports wind of hurricane velocity and great damage done to small crafts.

A company of the Florida Coast artillery is marooned on Egmont Key with their tents swept away and it is feared some of the men have perished.

Advices from the east coast are ominous. The extension work on the Florida East Coast railway has been greatly damaged and the line is blocked owing to washouts. A grade train is reported swept away north of Key West. How many laborers perished when the train was carried away is not known.

At St. Augustine the wind is driving the waves over the sea wall and a portion of the city is flooded. It is feared that the details will show great loss of life on both east and west coasts.

JULIA WARD HOWE.

America's Grand Old Woman Dies of Pneumonia—Burial Thursday.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 18.—Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, who was nearing her ninety-second birthday, is dead at her summer home in Portsmouth, R. I. The cause of her death was pneumonia.

Mrs. Howe, during the past week contracted a cold, but her family considered that she was improving and but fair to recover her former good health.

About her bedside at the time of her death were her three daughters, Mrs. Laura Richards, Mrs. John Elliot and Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, and her son-in-law, Mr. Elliot.

The funeral is to take place in Boston on Thursday afternoon at the Unitarian church, where she worshipped. Mrs. Howe's last public appearance was at the annual meeting of the Civic League a few weeks ago in this city, when she spoke on the increased opportunities of women in public life.

The name of Mrs. Howe, America's "Grand Old Woman," will live as that of one of the most generous and brilliant women the world has ever known. Before the Civil war she and her husband worked for emancipation. After seeing her efforts crowned with success she became interested in woman's suffrage, prison reform and the cause of peace.

ELCPEMENT OR DROWNING?

Couple Missing From Itasca, N. Y., Last Seen in Rowboat.

Itasca, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Howard M. Jones, the eighteen-year-old son of Rev. T. Jones, pastor of the First Baptist church of this city, and Miss Grace Hilliek, an eighteen-year-old telephone operator, have been missing from their homes two days and the facts seem to point to either an elopement or a double drowning.

The two young people were putting out from Rowlock pier in a rowboat when last seen. The empty boat was later discovered in the middle of the lake. One row was missing, but the boat was dry and did not look as if it had capsized. The families of both children refuse to believe that they have eloped.

At the same time Henry and Benjamin Duveen, the only members of the firm in this country, were served with a summons in a civil suit by which the government seeks to recover the value of undervalued importations to the amount of more than $1,000,000.

New Remedy That Cures Eczema Quickly.

A. A. Clarke has sold hundreds of jars of Hekara in the last few weeks, and although he offered to refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied purchaser, not one jar has been returned. People who have suffered with scabs, sores and even bleeding itching have found relief and cure in Hekara.

No matter where the eczema, pimples or other breaking out occurs, whether on the face, hands, legs or body, the application of Hekara will give quick relief, and even the worst or most chronic cases will be cured in a short time.

You can buy a liberal-sized jar at the very low price of 25c and with every package goes A. A. Clarke's guarantee to refund the money if it is not satisfactory. Larger size 50c.

Lord Loveland Discovers America

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1910, by The McClure Company

"It's the real thing about me—it's grown to be the whole of me," Lord Loveland broke out. "Nothing else matters. That's why I should have had to kill myself if you'd been hurt—or but I can't speak of it. Thank God, you're alive and not injured. Yes, that's enough for me—it's got to be enough, and I ought to be happy though you're going to belong to another man."

"You wouldn't have wanted to marry me and Lesley?" "I wouldn't have wanted to—when it's the thing I'd give all but one year of my life for—the one year I'd keep to be happy in with you."

"Just a poor little humble story writer, and you would really like to marry her?" "Don't torture me," said Lord Loveland. "I've had about all I can stand. If I were the impostor you think me—"

"I don't think you an impostor," replied Lesley, beginning to speak in quite a natural tone of voice again, though she kept the support of Lord Loveland's arm. "I never said I did. I only asked you once why I should have more faith in you than others had. But I'd be ready to take you on faith if you were ready to take me without a fortune."

The blood rushed to Loveland's face, which had been pale and drawn. "In it true—do you mean it?" he stammered. "Do you care for me, little?" "A great deal," said Lesley. "Too much, I used to think on the ship, but I don't think so now, because you're different. It's the real you I loved all the time. The miracle happened, you know. I'm seeing the other side of the moon. But wouldn't it be doing you an injury to tell you when you and your family counted on a great heiress?"

"It was the other me who hadn't the sense to see what a heavenly catch it would be to marry a girl just because she was rich—a girl I didn't love," Val hurried on. "Oh, Lesley, you're not playing with me, are you? I couldn't marry any other woman but you."

"What about the old family home that's crumbling to ruin?" "It will have to tumble," said Lesley. "And your family?" "There's only my mother, and what she wants most is my happiness. My love for you has somehow shown me how to appreciate her more. But, Lesley, what about Sidney Cremer? Do you care enough for me—a man you say you're 'taking on faith'—to give up all Cremer's money and to throw him over for my sake?"

"I can't throw him over," said Lesley. "Then how can we be married?" "And I can't give up my money," she said. "Lesley, have you raised me up only to let me fall deeper into the pit than ever?" "We both fell into the pit together, didn't we?" she said, laughing a little. "If you go deeper I'll go deeper, too, for we're going to stand or fall together now."

"Then what do you mean?" asked Val. "You'll have to accept me of us away—me or Sidney, Cremer?" "Let me sit up and we'll talk it over," said Lesley, with a quaint cheerfulness and matter-of-factness that utterly bewildered Loveland. "I feel so well and so happy now that I believe I can find my way out of any entanglement so long as we go hand in hand."

Val, resting on one knee, took the little gray mitten that she held out to him and pressed the hand in it. But there was a hardness in his voice as he answered: "This is an engaging meat that you'll find no way out of. You can't keep us both."

"You don't trust me?" Lesley reproached him. "Just wait before deciding to give me up until we've thoroughly thrashed things out, beginning at the beginning and going right on to the end."

"I shan't decide to give you up. Nothing can make me do that now," Loveland said. "It's Cremer who'll have to go to the wall."

"Little Lesley, poor, poor cat! I'm sorry for it, but it hasn't sacrificed itself in vain. I was beginning to wonder how on earth to bring all this about. That was what kept me awake last night. If I'm to tell the whole truth, it had to come some way, and it had to come soon. Well, Sidney's motorcar has solved the difficulty, and Sidney will be glad, for my happiness is the same to him as his own. And now I've gone so far I may as well confess that from the very minute I saw you play Lord Hob in that dinner little ball at Ashville I hoped—oh, but hoped more than anything that you would ask me to marry you! Please, please, don't be shocked, but I invited you to come here just for that."

"Yet you were engaged to Sidney Cremer," he said, half to himself. "I was bound to Sidney just as I am now and just as I have been for the last three years. And I wasn't tired of him then, not a bit, and I'm not even at this minute. But I love you—the real you."

"Darling!" exclaimed Loveland. Yet he marveled at her. This was a phase of the girl's character—her true and noble character—which he was at a loss to understand.

"You were very cold to me that night at Ashville," he ventured to say. "I was trying you. I wasn't quite sure, you see, which side of the moon I was looking at, and if, after all, it was only the same old side I didn't want to let myself be dazzled by it, as I couldn't help being at first. I was in love with you on the boat, even when I laughed at your talk of love. I felt more like crying than laughing, though, because the sort of love you gave me in return for mine wasn't worth my having."

"Heaven knows it," Val admitted humbly. "But I'm delighted that Sidney's motorcar jumped over conventionalities instead of my having to take the leap myself. Instead I just leaped with the car, and you leaped, too, and everything is made so heavenly for all the rest of our lives."

"I don't quite see how if you're not tired of Cremer," said Loveland. "Don't be jealous of Sidney any more. I liked making you a little jealous of him at first—after I saw how you felt. It was fun for me, and I thought it was good for you. But now it's different. I'm sure—sure—about the other side of the moon, and I want you to be as happy as I am. Oh, don't speak yet! I must go on a little farther. You know, I told you I had a telegram this morning?"

"Yes, yes." "Well, you thought it was from Sidney Cremer, and I didn't contradict. Lots of things you've thought lately I let you go on thinking without contradicting. The telegram was from little Fanny Milton—about you."

"She knew from a journalist who is a friend of hers that you'd come to this part of the country with a theatrical troupe, and they'd found out that the actors were playing pieces of Sidney Cremer's at Ashville. They talked it over together—Fanny and this Mr. Kidd. He wanted to know for his part's sake where you'd disappeared to when the company broke up. Last evening he suggested that she should telegraph to me. They both thought I might have heard about you. So that's why I felt that you wouldn't be stopping on as my chauffeur very long."

"Did Miss Milton say in the telegram that New York had discovered its mistake about me?" "No; she didn't say that, though it was a long telegram. I expect she thought I would have seen the newspapers. Well, I haven't. But I can put two and two together quite nicely, and I was sure that you'd come into your own again with the great American public, perhaps partly through Fanny Milton's Mr. Kidd. I'd be willing to wager all the profits of Sidney Cremer's next play, or next if it had them, that you can now go back, if you like, and get without any difficulty the heiress you came across the water for."

"I'm sick of the very word heiress," protested Loveland, with complete sincerity. "That's the new you. And what a very new you it is when you come to think of it—only a few weeks old! But it's the only real one. The other was a shell, which has broken."

"You broke it," said Val. "I cracked it a little maybe on the boat, but it took a big hammer to smash it, and now I've swept all the fragments away. There's the real you and the real me in the world, with the wonderful light from the other side of the moon shining on us two—and Sidney Cremer."

"Oh, Sidney Cremer!" cried Loveland. "He still stands between us." "No, he doesn't. If you love me you'll have to love Sidney, too, because Sidney is me, and I am one, and his money is mine, because I earn it. And don't I enjoy it too! Here I not enjoyed it for three whole years. Because all of a sudden from being a poor girl, dependent on Aunt Barbara, I waked up to find myself a rich one—oh, not rich in your meaning of the word, but rich enough to line castle walls with gold and diamonds, but rich enough to do nice little things for an old Kentucky farmhouse and perhaps even to help restore ancient British strongholds if the lord of them and of my heart will give me so much happiness."

"You—you are Sidney Cremer?" Loveland could only stammer the words stupidly. "Yes. Are you so surprised that I'm clever enough to make a success with my brain and my pen? I often wondered when you'd begin to suspect, but you never did. And I was wondering, too, whether Sidney Cremer would have to propose to you in the end. It's been great fun keeping my secret from the world, never letting any one know the real truth except Fanny Milton and lots of other acquaintances thought I was a friend of Sidney Cremer—perhaps even a poor relation of him. But the most fun of all has been keeping the secret from you till the time was ripe to tell. Do you remember saying the other day, 'Sidney Cremer is everything?' I told you I'd remind you of that some time and ask if you could say it again. Can you now?"

"Sidney Cremer is everything," repeated Loveland, whereupon Lesley

gave one of her little soft, cooling sighs and let him take her into his arms.

Quite possibly a boggy field with no shelter save a motorcar lying rakishly on one side was a queer place for an engagement between a young English marquis and a celebrated American novelist-playwright. But for Lesley and Loveland it was perfect. Sidney Cremer's wild fancy had never created a more enchanting scene for the love-making of hero and heroine. And, though, if there had been an audience, it would have seen the stage lit up only with pale rays of wintry sunshine, for the girl and the man it was illumined with ineffable light from the other side of the moon.

THE END.

Home Course In Health Culture

IV.—Nursing In the Home

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

IT is a far cry from the old type of nurse immortalized by Dickens in the character of Sissy Gamp to the modern formidable product in neat uniform, surrounded by an atmosphere of potent dignity and authority.

Trained nurses have their faults, just as physicians and clergymen have their weaknesses, but there is no denying that the intelligent trained nurse has largely contributed to the triumph of modern surgery and medicine. Medical and surgical practices would be one-sided and incomplete if the methods of treatment, however scientific, were left to careless or ignorant hands for administration.

How often we have occasion to appreciate the rapid change for the better that takes place when a patient is removed to a sanitarium or a trained nurse takes charge, even though no item of the drug treatment or diet is changed. Regularity and system are largely responsible for this result, but undoubtedly there is a certain value in the mental suggestion that accompanies the assurance of trained care and supervision, just as the daily visit of the physician fortifies and cheers, even though he gives no medicine.

Nursing in Acute Diseases. The trained nurse is of greatest service in severe acute diseases, such as pneumonia, typhoid fever, etc., when constant watchfulness is required and prompt administration of remedies ordered by the physician in certain emergencies.

Some people are born nurses, which means that they have clear heads, good nerve control, presence of mind and good temper, patience and sympathy. If a trained nurse is not obtainable and some members of the family can rise to these requirements good results will follow if the physician's instructions are carefully written down and accurately followed. Printed blanks can usually be obtained of druggists on which to keep a record of the temperature, pulse, nourishment given, etc., or a blank may be constructed for this purpose. The haphazard administration of nourishment and medicine should be avoided.

Nursing in Chronic Illness. In chronic diseases it usually falls to the lot of some member of the family to do the nursing. Here is where the physician should keep a watchful eye open and see that the fearful tyranny of chronic invalidism does not exact an unnecessary sacrifice. The chronic invalid becomes self-centered, lives in a world apart, where the bodily processes or infirmities fill nearly the whole field of consciousness. This self-absorption and introspection are often untidily fostered and encouraged through tender hearted sympathy on the part of family and friends.

There are few diseases that justify the slavery that is so often imposed by the chronic invalid. It is the physician's duty to bring about a more normal relationship and lift his patient out of the rut of weak self pity and selfish tyranny over others.

Chronic disease is indeed a pitiable condition, and the physician should be the last to withhold sympathy of comfort, but his influence should be exerted to develop courage, patience and self denial on the part of the sufferer, to the end that other lives may not be needlessly sacrificed.

Persons who are called upon to care for invalids, should be compelled to take proper exercise and rest. Many a nervous, run-down life can be traced to the exacting demands of some chronic sufferer. But the blame rests not so much upon the partly responsible invalid as upon those who permit such exertions.

General Measures in Sickness. The sickroom should, of course, be of sunny exposure and well ventilated. It should be bright and cheerful, but not lumbered by carpets, upholstered furniture or curtains. In the grave crises of disease the slightest confusion may turn the tide against the patient.

As a rule, the bed should not be placed against a wall, but in the center of the room, so that access to the patient may be had on both sides and a free circulation of air be permitted. In pneumonia the room should be ventilated freely. The pneumonia patient cannot catch cold. Cold air goes to be a specific for the disease, and it is now the chief reliance in treatment.

In acute bronchitis or laryngitis, however, cold air appears to be irritating, and, while the room should have a constant supply of fresh air, it should be warmed.

Taking the Temperature. The temperature is best taken in the rectum for accurate results, although a five minute exposure in the armpit or groin will usually give an accurate register unless the surface of the body is affected by an acute chill. If the temperature is taken in the mouth the instrument should be placed deeply under the tongue and the lips tightly closed and kept closed until the thermometer is removed. No matter what style of thermometer is used, it should be left in the mouth three to five minutes. Never take the mouth temperature immediately after administering cold drinks.

Bathing the Invalid. A great deal of comfort is afforded the invalid by a daily bath where the condition warrants it. When the patient is unable to get up, the body, at a time may be quickly and gently bathed. Alcohol and water, equal parts, with gentle massage, is often refreshing and restorative.

The hot pack, cold pack and cold bath for reduction of temperature should be used only under the advice and direction of the physician. In mild fever, however, sponging the body with cold or tepid water or alcohol and water will prove grateful and often reduce fever.

Diet in Fever, Etc. People are often at a loss what to give a fever patient to eat. In acute fever caused by indigestion or bowel trouble, especially in children, it is better to withhold food until the system has been cleared of poison. Some persons fear starvation if food is not given within twenty-four hours. A little barley water or plain boiled water is better than food, which will only contain undigested and add fuel to the fire. A poor patient is better than a poor content.

In protracted fever there is a great waste of tissue, and albuminous food is required to make good this loss. This is supplied by broths, soups, milk and eggs. Carbohydrates (starches, grains, etc.) are also needed, as they supply energy and lessen the waste of albuminous tissues. These may be given in the form of strained rice, strained oatmeal, crushed wheat or barley, partially predigested if necessary.

Beef tea cannot be relied upon for nourishment, but is a good appetizer and of some value as a stimulant.

Useful Invalid Foods. Albumen Water—Cut the white of one fresh egg in numerous directions with scissors, shake it up in a bottle with six ounces of pure cold water and a pinch of salt and strain through muslin. Useful for infants with acute gastro-intestinal trouble, when milk must be withdrawn.

Barley Water (Thin)—Add a teaspoonful of barley previously washed in clear cold water to a half pint of boiling water with a pinch of salt. Allow it to simmer by the fire, stirring occasionally for one hour; then strain through muslin.

Imperial Drink—Pour a pint of boiling water on a heaping teaspoonful of sugar of tartar; add a little sugar and lemon peel, strain when cold. This is cooling and increases the activity of the kidneys.

Liquor or Flavored Tea—Mix together three drams of uncooked flax seed (finest), thirty grains of extract of Hecodee and ten ounces of boiling water and allow to stand from one to four hours in a warm place. Do not boil. A little lemon juice and sugar and one or two drams of gum arabic will improve the mixture. This "tea" is especially valuable in acute colds, bronchitis, laryngitis and some forms of bladder trouble. It should be more generally used than in the case.

Beef Tea—Take a pound of lean beef, free from fat and fibrous tissue, cut into small pieces. Place these in a crock or fruit jar with a good cover. Add to it a quart of cold water and ten or twelve drops of dilute hydrochloric acid. Stand in a moderately warm place for an hour; then let it simmer gently for two hours more; then strain and season with salt and pepper, if desired. It should be administered hot, an ounce or two at a time.

Barbecued Beef Tea—To beef tea prepared as in the formula first given, add a little well cooked oatmeal or cracked wheat and serve hot. Barley water or rice water may be likewise enriched by beef tea.

Peptonized Foods, Etc.—Partial predigestion of milk, meat, oysters, etc.,
